

Christopher Chomyn: Director of Photography.....

A Director's success and/or failure depends on a number of people, and the DP is the critical one, particularly when shooting film.

Chris instilled the confidence I needed to go with his instincts in our challenging shoot - 2 cameras, short schedule, multiple characters in scenes, many music performances, etc. His calm, thoughtful approach dovetailed nicely with mine, as did our mutual focus on planning. When we hit the set, it was to shoot the scene, committed to creating the best possible outcome.

He respects everyone, both cast and crew, getting the most productivity through strong leadership, and by listening to and understanding others. I would be happy to sit next to Chris on any project, knowing it will be an enjoyable and creatively satisfying experience. As important to me, Chris is.....

.....a Good Guy, Husband & Dad.
